The way we communicate and distribute information as we go forward will continue for our YouTube channel. We have enjoyed the reactions and responses from our viewers in the comments section! In order to open up and expand the opportunity to have even more in-depth discussions and give people the opportunity to share and learn from each other, we have decided to create a new the Wes Penre forum.

***

Because of the way the last forum disintegrated, we would like to put in safety measures to ensure this does not happen again.

While we have enjoyed participating in the comment sections of our videos, we want to have more interactions and discussions with those of you who are interested in our material. We will still try to be active in the comment section, as time allows. However, as we concentrate on this new venture, our intention is to allow the forum to become our main location for discussions about our research.

***

We do not want to be the only ones sharing ideas, theories, or research. We want to provide a place for others to share their own! We have noticed in our video comment section that we learn new things from you all the time! We would like to have a private, troll-free, and comfortable place to learn about these topics where the communication is more open.

***

In creating our forum, we pondered heavily on how to keep it private and secure for members to feel comfortable and free from harassment (ourselves included). Our solution to this was to create a members-only forum. There will be no access to this forum from outside, anonymous guests. A few of our areas are open to public view only, but most areas are private, and NO ONE will be allowed permission to interact with members of the forum without registering for an account and getting approval from the staff.

***

As we have been writing articles and producing videos, we have often found ourselves going off-topic as we write them, wanting to expand on certain issues or areas of information, but finding that it adds too much information in one video. We want to have a place to expand on these topics if the viewer is interested in learning more about specific topics mentioned in the videos. For example, in the Thoth series, we would like to discuss information concerning the Halls of Amenti, but that needs to be a separate article, and some people may not be interested in additional material; only wanting to get to the “meat” of a topic without further expansion into these other areas. A section has been created on the forum to post additional articles and videos for those who want this additional information.

We hope to grow a community of like-minded individuals who are serious about their search for truth and expanding their knowledge, with the best intentions for all others involved. To do this, we will be requiring all members to pay a monthly registration fee to join the forum. Please visit the link to the forum in the description box of this video to read the rules for how to become a member. While you are there, look around and consider if this is a community you would feel has value for your experience and, whether this is a place you would like to help create. We want this community to be a group effort of creation. We look forward to growing with you!

IMPORTANT NOTICE: From TODAY (10/8/2018) until the end of this month (10/31/2018) ALL memberships to the forum will be FREE for one month! This allows everyone to test the waters and decide if participation in the forum is something you would enjoy.

***

If you sign up, anytime, in the month of October, you will get a free membership to the forum for one month (from the date you registered to the corresponding date in November – the 20th of October to the 20th of November, for example). After your free month has expired, you will then need to pay the registration fee to keep your membership active and continue having access to the forum. This open membership period will end at 11:59pm CST on October 31.
